

Putting On A Fresh Face

AFTER:

BEFORE:

Whether you are in a rural or urban setting, do not let your homes become dated! The new metro buyer/renter is often drawn to an updated, “edgy” architecture style, which mirrors the age of technology and advancements we now live in.

A more “resort” style purchaser can be enticed with playful materials and detailing that fit contextually in their surroundings. The facade of a building is the first thing a person notices, and to create more curb appeal (even with an existing product), sometimes all you need is a fresh face with updated details and color/material selections.
